Texts, Translations, and Notes

VIKING CHORALE

Land of Rest – text: Katie Kring

O Land of Rest, for you we pine
When our anguish knows no end
Land where our tears are wiped away
And our divisions mend.

With broken hearts and tear-filled eyes
We tremble in our grief
But from the sorrows of the world
Is born God's sweet relief

The shadows fall and death lurks near
But through our fears we pray
For we know that the darkest night
Dawns to the brightest day

O Land of Rest, to you we fly
Where wars and borders cease
There, mortal enemies from earth
Are brothers now in peace

The joys and sorrows of this life
Shall pass before our eyes
Though agony will lay us down
In ecstasy we rise.

The Seal Lullaby – text: Rudyard Kipling

Oh! Hush thee, my baby, the night is behind us,
And black are the waters that sparkled so green.
The moon, o'er the combers, looks downward to find us,
At rest in the hollows that rustle between.
Where billow meets billow, then soft be thy pillow,
Oh weary wee flipperling, curl at thy ease!
The storm shall not wake thee, nor shark overtake thee,
Asleep in the arms of the slow swinging seas!

CANTALA

Ahlan Wa Sahlan (أهلاً وسهلاً) – text: Arabic, Kyle Pederson

ahlan wa sahlán (welcome) and you and me and we are family where I'm for you and I know you're for me.

This piece was created as part of a collaborative effort for an AMIS (Association for Music in International Schools) high school choral festival in Oman. In English, ahlan wa sahlán is translated to mean welcome, but the phrase means a lot more than that. Ahlan wa sahlán is a warm reception—a genuine spirit of hospitality that is deeply valued in Oman. The literal derivation is quite lovely; ahl means “family” – as my visitor, consider yourself to be part of my family. Sahl means “easy” – while you are here, may your stay feel relaxed, as you would feel in your own home.

This collaboratively crafted peace, intentionally integrates/blends influences from both Western and Middle Eastern harmony, melody, rhythm, and language. In the context in which this piece came to life (International Omani Festival with students, musicians, and audience members representing a variety of cultural backgrounds), it seemed very fitting to craft a piece, honoring those various backgrounds and influences, giving tangible meaning to the theme of welcome—which is central to the peace, and a beautiful concept to live into in our turmoil-filled world. May your singers and audience members feel the same sense of welcome when this piece is performed in your context.

Special thanks to Reem Al Yafaey at TAISM (The American International School of Muscat, Oman) for the melodic inspiration of the opening solo.

– Kyle Pederson

Out of the Morning – text: Emily Dickinson

Will there really be a morning?
Is there such a thing as day?
Could I see it from the mountains
If I were as tall as they?

Has it feet like water-lilies?
Has it feathers like a bird?
Is it brought from famous countries
Of which I have never heard?

Oh, some scholar! Oh, some sailor!
Oh, some wise man from the skies!
Please to tell a little pilgrim
Where the place called morning lies!

Out of the Morning was written for Phillip Swan and the University of Miami Women's Chorale and premiered in their 2002 Spring Concert in Gustman Hall on campus.

There are times in our lives when we feel small, and we wonder what the future holds. Even the most basic knowledge of Emily Dickinson's life will reveal that she was no stranger to such sentiment. Out of the Morning is a simple yet fervent plea for guidance and should be approached as such.

Where the Light Begins – text: Jan Richardson

Perhaps it does not begin.
Perhaps it is always.

in testimony and praise.

Perhaps it takes a lifetime
to open our eyes, to learn to see what has forever shimmered in front of us –

Perhaps this day will be the mountain over which the dawn breaks.

the luminous line of the map in the dark

Perhaps we will turn our face toward it, toward what has been always.

the vigil flame in the house of the heart

Perhaps our eyes will finally open in ancient recognition, willingly dazzled, illuminated at last.

the love so searing we cannot keep from singing, from crying out

Perhaps this day
the light begins in us.

This beautiful poem was originally written as a blessing for Christmas by writer and artist Jan Richardson. On her blog (adventdoor.com), she writes, “though we cannot see or feel or know all the ways that God is radiantly illuminating us, may we open ourselves toward that light. May we open our eyes, our hands, our hearts to meet it. May we lean into the light that begins in the deepest dark, bearing itself into this world for us.”

In writing this piece for the Henry Middle School Varsity Treble Choir, their director asked me to contemplate the theme of “peace” for their concert program. This text, while originally written about Advent and the anticipation of Christmas, uses wonderfully universal words that relate to the ideas of peace and hope. Jan’s blessing makes me think that within each of us is the ability to work toward peace. It doesn’t take a monumental action, just many little kindnesses that we can show to others every day which radiate out to bring light to the whole of humanity. When we love, accept, and care for all of our neighbors—despite our differences—we find that the light that the dark world so desperately needs begins in us.

Dormi Jesu (The Virgin's Cradle Hymn) – text: anonymous, traditional Latin

Dormi, Jesu! Mater ridet
Quae tam dulcem somnum videt, Dormi, Jesu! blandule!
Si non dormis, Mater plorat,
Inter fila cantans orat, Blande, veni, somnule.

Sleep, Jesus! Mother smiles who sees such sweet sleep, Sleep, Jesus! Sleep, Jesus, gentling!
if you sleep not, Mother weeps, while she spins, in song she prays, come, gentle little sleep.

Sleep, sweet babe! my cares beguiling:
Mother sits beside thee smiling;
Sleep, my darling, tenderly!
If thou sleep not, mother mourneth,
Singing as her wheel she turneth:
Come, soft slumber, balmily!

— Paraphrase by Samuel Taylor Coleridge

God Says Yes to Me – text: Kaylin Haught

I asked God if it was okay to be melodramatic and she said yes
I asked her if it was okay to be short and she said it sure is I asked her if I could wear nail polish or not wear nail polish and she said honey she calls me that sometimes she said you can do just exactly what you want to Thanks God I said
And is it even okay if I don't paragraph my letters Sweetcakes God said who knows where she picked that up what I'm telling you is Yes Yes Yes

Kaylin Haught's poem God Says Yes to Me is a short, conversational work about divine affirmation, self-acceptance, and the gentle freedom of being fully human.

Key Themes

- Unconditional Affirmation: The speaker asks God small, trivial, and seemingly silly questions about everyday life – whether it is okay to be melodramatic, short, wear or skip nail polish, or fail to paragraph letters. God's answer is a comforting, constant “yes”
- A Feminine and Intimate God: Haught portrays God using female pronouns (“she”) and terms of endearment like “honey” and “Sweetcakes”. This breaks traditional, rigid religious imagery and replaces it with a warm, maternal, and approachable presence.
- Release from Perfectionism: The poem gently mocks human neurosis and the constant worry of doing life “wrong”. It suggests that holiness is not about strict rules, but about loving acceptance of our quirks and small imperfections.

CONCERT CHOIR

Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor / The New Colossus – text: Emma Lazarus

Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest tossed to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door.

Forever – is composed of Nows – text: Emily Dickinson

Forever – is composed of Nows –
'Tis not a different time –
Except for Infiniteness –
And Latitude of Home –

From this – experienced Here – Remove the Dates – to These – Let Months dissolve in further Months –
And Years – exhale in Years –

Without Debate – or Pause –
Or Celebrated Days –
No different Our Years would be
From Anno Dominies –

Tides – text: Cara Cullen

When we are tethered to fear we cannot hope to abolish injustice;
courage gains ground only when we recognize it beneath our own feet.

You can't test the parting of the sea without setting foot on to the sand.
Faith in the potential is the only way to reclaim humanity.

While caution and division shout above the waves;
hope is the tide that rises again
and again
persistent even in retreat already planning to rush in once more.

A chance – to try again
Try again, better this time
more compassionate this time, more loving this time,
more understanding this time.

We should be the sea that never tires of returning to the shore; that retreats and gathers strength to fight again
and again.

Washed clean – not forgotten;
forgiven, to try again better this time; compassionate this time, loving this time, understanding this time.

Abide with Me – text: Henry F. Lyte

Abide with me, fast falls the eventide;
The darkness deepens, Lord with me abide;
When other helpers fail and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, O abide with me.

I need Thy presence ev'ry passing hour.
What but Thy grace can foil the tempter's pow'r?
Who, like Thyself, my guide and stay can be?
Through cloud and sunshine, O abide with me.

O Thou who changest not, abide with me.
In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me.
Amen.

We gratefully acknowledge the important role all of the Lawrence faculty play in preparing our students academically and musically, from our colleagues in musicology and music theory, to our colleagues in sight-singing, aural skills and keyboard skills and to our colleagues in the liberal arts. We particularly wish to recognize and thank the voice and piano studio faculty members:

Voice Faculty

Dale Duesing, artist-in-residence

John T. Gates, bass

Eric Gibson, director of opera studies

Esteli Gomez, soprano

Karen Leigh-Post, mezzo-soprano

Kristin Roach, vocal coach and musical director of opera

Cayla Rosché, soprano

Steven Paul Spears, tenor

Keyboard Faculty

Daniel Schwandt, organ

Catherine Kautsky, piano

Eunice Kim, piano

Michael Mizrahi, piano

Anthony Padilla, piano
